PROGRAM

Palais des Académies, Brussels, Belgium
19-20 May 2011

Congress on European Tax Law

“BEYOND DISCRIMINATION : THE ROLE OF THE ECJ CASE-LAW IN THE INTERNATIONAL DIVISION OF TAXING POWERS IN DIRECT TAXATION”

Organizers:

Prof. Dr. H. C. Wolfgang Schön, Max Planck Institute, Munich, Germany
Prof. Dr. Edoardo Traversa, Catholic University of Louvain, Belgium
Prof. Dr. Isabelle Richelle, University of Liège, Belgium

Twenty-five years ago, the famous Avoir fiscal case gave occasion to the European Court of Justice to inaugurate a fruitful case-law on the application of EU Treaty freedoms in direct taxation. Based as it was on the concept of discrimination, this case-law has had a significant impact on the Member States' shaping of tax systems. The Court's most recent decisions, however, seem to reflect a slackening pace and a loss of vigour in applying the discrimination approach. This Conference examines whether the time has come for the Court to develop original EU criteria for the allocation of taxing powers between Member States.

BELGIUM AND EUROPEAN DIRECT TAX LAW, RECENT DEVELOPMENTS AND FUTURE CHALLENGES

 Friday 20 May 2011

The Friday afternoon session will focus more particularly - though not exclusively - on Belgium. Its scope will be twofold. On the one hand, it will assess whether the Belgian federal and regional legislators have taken EU constraints sufficiently into account, or whether further modifications should be introduced. On the other, it will discuss recent issues relating to the representation of Member States (such as Belgium) before the ECJ and the role of the European Commission in EU judicial procedures.

Chair : Prof. Melchior Wathelet, Catholic University of Louvain/University of Liège, Belgium

2:00 – 5:30 p.m.

The Reshaping of Belgian Income Tax by European Judges: Present and Future
